

University of Oxford
Sub-Faculty of Russian and Other Slavonic Languages
ONLINE OPEN DAY
Saturday 27 February, 11am-12.30pm

PROGRAMME

There will be a live chat available throughout the morning, curated by Professor Julie Curtis

Live Q&A sessions:

11.00-11.30: Dr Hanne Eckhoff, together with current undergraduates: Q&A session

The focus here will be on learning Russian from scratch.

11.30-12.00: Professor Andrew Kahn, together with current undergraduates: Q&A session

The focus here will be on studying Russian post-A level {or equivalent}.

12.00-12.30: Dr Rajendra Chitnis, together with current undergraduates: Q&A session

The focus here will be on Czech (and Polish).

Watch these videos before, during or after our live Open Day!

1) Professor Philip Bullock: Welcome and Introduction

Professor Philip Bullock will speak about our courses in Russian, Czech and Polish, with particular focus on applying for and studying Russian (whether as a complete beginner, or post-A level {or equivalent} – including the option to take Russian ‘Sole’). He will also describe year abroad and career options.

2) Dr Hanne Eckhoff: Language and Linguistics

Dr Hanne Eckhoff will speak about the emphasis placed on language study throughout all years of our Oxford courses; she will then describe and illustrate the options offered by the study of Linguistics.

3) Professor Polly Jones: Russian Literature

Professor Polly Jones will describe and illustrate some of the opportunities offered by the study of literary texts.

4) Dr Rajendra Chitnis: Czech (and Polish)

Dr Rajendra Chitnis will describe the opportunities to study Czech and Polish, illustrated by a short presentation on Czech.